

Dear Parents,

It is that time of year again. Time for Mr. Albertson's list of some of my favorite (or least favorite) PET PEEVES! As I get older and more cantankerous, I tend to add to my Pet Peeve list, so here they are:

1. Fast Food drive through line procrastinators. Yes this continues to make my list each year. To those people that sit in the McDonald's line each morning in front of me and even though they have had several minutes (seems like hours) to make up their mind, they freeze up when they get to the mic and just cannot decide. Or they may have their spouse or children in the car that is shouting out additional items to order. Or they decide that they want pickles, mustard and onions only, ON THEIR EGG McMUFFIN!! Here is the rule.....make up your mind before you get to the mic, order quickly, move up as far as you can in line, and pay with money, not your phone (it usually takes several tries) and get your food without checking every single item in the bag!
2. People that leave their turn signal on when they are not turning. I have to admit, I sometimes am guilty of this infraction of pet peevery. Turning onto US 31 south from Shelby, always leaves me with my turn signal on. In all fairness to me, the angle of the turn is not great enough to disengage my left turn signal. Still, turn off your turn signal if you are not turning!!
3. People that start a sentence like this: "I am not here to complain, but....." YES YOU ARE! Just because you start a sentence with "I am not her to complain" does not give you the green light to complain! Just walk up to me next time and say "I am here to complain, and here is my complaint!" I will think much more of you and the conversation will go much faster.
4. People that type me emails in bold or ALL CAPS! If you want to yell or expound, just come visit me and let it out. Please don't hide behind your keyboard (and cc everyone you know including the Pope) on an email when you have a beef, just come see me. My door is open at 5:00am and I have ice cold pop in the machine! And to you people that end each sentence with an exclamation mark....well, I am one of you!
5. People who think they are entitled. This is a big pet peeve for me. As a principal of a Catholic school, I sometimes get people that think they are entitled. Entitled to know things that are none of their business. Entitled to want answers about things that do not concern them. Entitled to make decisions that are not theirs to make. Entitled to worry about how other people's children are behaving. I am sure glad that we don't have very many entitled people at our school or parish!

Have a great weekend and we will see you at Mass!

Thanks and God Bless,

Rusty Albertson
Principal
St. Mark Catholic School
